

Department of Geography, the University of Georgia. Tenure-track Associate or Assistant Professor, to start August 2006. Ph.D. required at time of appointment. We seek applications from energetic scholars with dynamic research programs in Human Geography. Research can be in any substantive area that will meaningfully complement and extend our current strengths. Our program (www.ggy.uga.edu) engages in theoretically rigorous research from a broad range of methodological standpoints. The successful candidate should have an established program of research marked by a solid record of publications and a record of, or potential for, securing funding from extra-university sources. The successful candidate will play a central role in the department's growing graduate and undergraduate programs. Excellence in teaching and graduate mentoring is expected. Applicants should submit a letter of interest in the position that describes research and teaching interests and expected points of interaction with our program. Applications should include a curriculum vitae, up to three reprints/samples of written work, and three letters of reference. Applications must arrive no later than January 6, 2006. The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Institution. The Department of Geography and the Franklin College of Arts and Sciences are committed to increasing faculty diversity and strongly encourage applications from individuals in under-represented groups.
